President's Message

Sudhanshu "Sam" B. Desai, D.D.S.

It has truly been an honor to serve as President of the WCDDA this past year. I want to take this opportunity to express my deepest gratitude to all my friends and colleagues who have helped me look good to the membership. It has been a presidency filled with many changes and yet we had plenty of fun along the way. This year we had many actions that will impact the future of our association like the reworking of our mission statement, by-law changes, eliminating the WCDDA House of Delegates as the governing body of the association and electing to have the Executive Cabinet as the administrative and governing board. Many education opportunities were offered at the summer meeting in Naples, the annual meeting in St. Petersburg, local affiliate meetings, FDA meetings, and the cruise seminar. I promised at the beginning of my Presidency that we would see some fun too: the Royal Indian Reception, the Presidential Reception, the FLA-MOM Volunteer Reception, the 40 & Under Event, Beers with Peers, Divas in Dentistry and the cruise. This definitely rounds out my year with a bang!

I would like to thank the officers: Drs. Fred Grassin, Chris Bulnes, Melissa Grimaudo, Natalie Carr, Tim Marshall and Leo Cullinan. Their dedicated support to me and the WCDDA at all times insured the success of the programs for you, the members. My special thanks goes to two energetic ladies of our WCDDA office, Executive Director, Lissette Zuknick, and Executive Secretary, Kelsey Tidler. Both of them were instrumental in simplifying some challenges and in turn allowed for the smooth running of our organization. I am amazed by their dedication, endless energy and their willingness to do the best possible job for you.

Sincerely,
Sudhanshu (Sam) B. Desai, D.D.S.

Dentists' Day on the Hill

Congratulations to Dr. Jessica Kroll who was able to attend DDOH partly due to the Dr. Dan Bertoch Memorial Grant and West Pasco County Dental Association.

I, like many other dentists I know, am slightly Type A and possibly a minor control freak. I like my schedule to run as planned, I like my treatment to have predictable results, and I like my practice to run smoothly. Of course there are emergencies and no-shows and hiccups, but I find comfort in having a pretty good grasp of what each day will hold. It is just so easy to live in this bubble of my own life and my own practice and to blissfully ignore that dentistry is at a very high risk of changing.

Sure, I have heard time and time again that managed care will completely take over and that private practice dentistry is dying. Yes, I have been told that soon we will be at the mercy of insurance companies and our patients and practices will suffer. But my bubble is intact, my schedule is (relatively) full, and it is surprisingly easy to avoid thinking about the issues that I like to pretend will not affect me. That is until I find myself sitting in a conference room at the state capital, surrounded by dentists from all over Florida, listening to our dedicated lobbyists talk about the progress that has been made in legislation over the last year.

At Dentists' Day on the Hill this year, WCDDA members were able to meet with legislators from all over the West Coast District. We were even able to sit down with the Senate President and Speaker of the House, mainly because of the relationships these two leaders have with their legislative contact dentists. Thanks to the organizational skills of Dr. Zack Kalarickal, we spent even more time in meetings and less time running back and forth across the capital than last year. My feet were grateful.

What I came away with from DDOH this year is threefold. First, I need to take my head out of the sand and pay attention to the issues. I am not saying I need to become a political activist, but when I receive an email asking me to email a legislator in support of or opposition to a bill, I should at least read the summary. Second, there is huge strength in numbers. Legislators notice when a group has a strong turnout on the Hill and they are more likely to listen the more we bombard them. Similarly, they are more likely to take our issues seriously when they hear about them at home. We were encouraged over and over to talk to our senators and representatives in congress when they are not in session and can actually take time to talk with us. And finally, it is vital to our profession to maintain, and hopefully increase, our membership in organized dentistry. The reason my future is bright is because generation after generation of dentists have fought for our profession. It is my responsibility as a young dentist to continue the fight.

I was only able to attend DDOH this year because of the Dan Bertoch Memorial Grant. Everyone knows it is not easy to take time off from work, let alone to take time off when you are still new in your career and being buried in student loan debt. Dan Bertoch worked hard to develop legislator relationships and the grant in his honor can help young dentists continue to carry the torch he once carried. I can only hope that more and more young dentists will get involved in organized dentistry and apply for the grant next year.

We did it...YOU did it!!!

Words on a page cannot describe the scene, the impact, the sentiment, and the positive, life-changing effects of our efforts (your efforts) during the weekend of March 28-29th at the Special Events Center of the Florida State Fairgrounds in Tampa!

The support of our FDA President, Dr. Terry Buckenheimer who provided the inspiration for this event, our Florida Dental Health Foundation Board, FDA Executive Director Drew Eason, his incredible FDHF/FDA Staff, Rusty Payton & Stefanie Dedmon, and the West Coast District Dental Association was critical to the success of this endeavor on so many levels.

It is no accident that the WCDDA Leadership, membership, and incredible passion and tremendous organizational talents of our Executive Director, Lisette Zuknick, our Executive Secretary, Kelsey Tidler and Marlinda Fulton completely embraced this "Culture of Giving" and breathed life into this project. It's also impossible to imagine how we could have shined so brightly without our Co-Clinical Director "Rock Stars", Drs. Chris Bulnes & Oscar Menendez and the other amazing FLAMOM Chairs and Leads!!!

At the risk of leaving someone out, we would like to recognize our entire FLAMOM Committee:

The experience can be summed up with two poignant quotes:

"Pick good people...get out of the way...and let them amaze you!"
(Dr. Hugh Wunderlich, Past-President, WCDDA; Past-Today's FDA Editor)

"God put us all together to accomplish His goal for all involved. I look forward to what is next on His agenda!"
(Dr. Terry Buckenheimer, President, FDA)

While we extend our most heartfelt thanks for the spirit and enthusiastic participation of our 1,500+ volunteers and community partners, we want to encourage each one of our members and non-member colleagues to seek out the many viable local opportunities to volunteer-to make a difference. The need is overwhelming. The patients need your help with comprehensive dental treatment and they are right in your own backyard!

Till the next FLAMOM event, we remain your grateful and humble partners in service, 2014 FLAMOM Co-Chairs

Important Information

Online Dental Marketing Efforts Driven by More Using Social Media

The use of social media as a platform to promote, as well as educate and engage patients, is no longer just a viable marketing strategy but one that must be utilized to stay competitive, according to a new study. Facebook is the dominant platform across most demographic groups with more than 71 percent of all online users in 2013, up from 67 percent in 2012. Facebook also has the highest levels of engagement among users—63 percent of them use Facebook at least once a day; about 40 percent visit the website multiple times throughout the day. A fundamental marketing principle is to go where your potential patients are; don't make them come to you. The larger percentage of your time and efforts spent socially marketing should be through Facebook. By socially marketing online, dental practices can capitalize on the fastest growing communication channels. In addition, they will also benefit by strongly directing efforts toward the segment of the market that will soon control two-thirds of the consumer wealth: women—the same market segment that influences and manages the majority of purchasing and health care decisions in the U.S. View more statistics by visiting <http://www.ada.org/news/9773.aspx>.

Meeting the Challenge of Change for Maximum Case Acceptance

8:00 a.m. – 11:30 a.m. – 3 CE Credits – Dr. Mark Setter – Sponsored in part by BioHorizons

Success in the practice of dentistry requires a wide variety of skills. These skills range from clinical competency, social adaptability, management of others, to leadership in getting others to follow your recommendations and vision. A successful career in any profession will typically span greater than twenty years, and during that time, constant change takes place, not only in the clinical advancements we have available, but also in the business environment we must work within. If one is to maintain success throughout their career, the contemporary dentist must make changes in all of the skill sets required to practice dentistry.

There have been very few times in the history of our profession that the rate of change has been so rapid. Changes in technology, third party payment systems, auxiliary staff utilization and patient desires / expectations all present earthquake - like instability to the practice that is unprepared for such change.

This challenge of change can appear as an obstacle to success for the unprepared, or can be a huge opportunity for success to the professional that sharpens the wide range of skills needed in a leading contemporary dental practice. This program is designed to prepare the contemporary dentist for the challenge of change that lies ahead by identifying the skills needed to make change the ally in the successful treatment of patients.

Topics covered in this program include: Communication. Leadership and The Team. Implementation of the principles discussed in this program will provide the greatest opportunities for those offices that are willing to embrace the challenge of change.

The Last Word

Steve Zuknick, DMD

Why do we do what we do? The basic answer is obvious, to earn a living. After being part of Florida's first MOM (Mission of Mercy) event at the end of March, I realize it can be for so much more. The numbers were dramatic: 2 treatment days, 1667 patients seen, 8600 plus procedures performed, and $1,140,000 worth of free dental service provided. Not included in these numbers were the countless hours spent by a core group of West Coast volunteers who worked extremely hard to ensure this first time Florida production would go off successfully. These people will go unnamed by me simply because I would not know where to stop without slighting the next in line. To me it would be unjust to leave out recognizing a single volunteer for the difference they made in so many lives.

So instead let me pass on a few stories of those affected for the better. There was the couple who queued up outside Gate 2 with their newborn, a playpen, some food and drink 18 hours before the clinic floor was to open to ensure that they would have a chance to be treated. Their diligence ensured they were some of the first to receive care and their only available form of repayment was a note of thanks. A man at patient exit asked if he could make a donation. After a volunteer ensured him he certainly did not need to, he said "I only have a little money today, but could you send me information on where I could send something when I have it?" Another patient had 18 remaining teeth, and possibly one continuous periapical abscess. Although we had a fully operational surgery department one of our generalists removed these diseased teeth to reveal a very grateful toothless grin and endless gratitude. One last account dealt with a young man in his 20's whose problems were caused by "sipping sweet tea all day". He said he knew he "was in trouble, but if you could just do something." He was in line for endodontic therapy on a badly broken down upper canine when one of your West Coast line officers brought him to restorative because she saw he had bigger issues. A dentist who had traveled from Miami restored numbers 7-11 over the course of an hour in such a dramatic fashion the patient could just shake his head in disbelief at the transformation.

For every one of these feel good cases there were was another who left with an unfinished story. There was a man who left because he couldn't afford to miss work at 4 PM but had been waiting since the wee hours of the morning. The line had slowed because some pano machines had overheated. When the offer was made to move him to the front of the line he declined because "those people have been waiting longer than me." Maybe it was that only part of their problem was solved, or maybe it was that they increased their dental IQ enough that they realized they wanted more for their mouth. More than we were able to provide on that day. Is that such a bad thing, to improve someone's expectations for themselves? We realize we only grazed the surface but the first FLA MOM was a step in the right direction. So why do we do what we do? Maybe it should be because it allows us the opportunity to give back, because we have a talent that affords us the opportunity to make a living while helping others live better. All the income in the world can't beat the feeling gained from really, truly making a difference.
